Property Description

This is a handsome and generously proportioned 3 bedroom stone house dating to around 1850, in a historic village with twice weekly markets and full range of shops, bank and post office, restaurants and bars open year round. The house was renovated 6 years ago, including a new roof and roof terrace with far-reaching village and mountain views. The secluded walled garden is very rare for a village house, and also has a rustic covered terrace at one end for dining. There are double doors to the wide entrance hall, off which is an authentic beamed kitchen with open fire and a dining room with barrel vaulted brick ceiling. On the first floor is a living room with windows onto the garden, and a Jotul stove. Also a guest room which has an en-suite shower room and laundry area. The top floor has two bedrooms, one with a Jotul stove currently used as a morning room with garden views, the other with views towards the mountains and an en-suite bath/shower room. The attic floor has a large storage area and access to the roof terrace.
